

A NEW EDEN

Where They Will Dress Only in Fig Leaves as in

THE GARDEN OF EDEN

How Would You Like to Wander in This Curious, Freakish Earthly Paradise With a New Adam and a New Eve Entirely Free From Clothes, Conventionalities and Original Sin.

Of all the freak new religions that are flourishing in the United States, perhaps the most freakish is the Adam and Eve sect of Denver, Colo.

Adam is a man formerly known as James Sharp, and Eve is his wife, formerly known as Melissa Sharp.

The fundamental tenets of the new religion are that these two interesting people are Adam and Eve, returned to earth free from original sin and just as good as they were before the fall and the expulsion from the Garden of Eden.

They have a divine mission to lead men and women back to the Garden of Eden, which they will establish in the vicinity of Denver.

The central figure is naturally Mrs. Sharp, or Mother Eve, as she is now called, a handsome young woman of magnetic personality. It will be recalled that Eve was unquestionably the most interesting figure in the Biblical drama of the fall of man and his expulsion from the Garden of Eden.

The role of man was the passive and rather cowardly one. Eve listened to the voice of the serpent and was persuaded that it would be delightful to eat of the forbidden fruit of the tree of knowledge. Then, mistakenly, she persuaded Adam to share the fruit with her, believing that it would contribute to his happiness. When they were both punished for their disobedience Adam basely and weakly attempted to excuse himself by saying:

"The woman tempted me and I did eat."

In a restored Eden the woman must be a stronger and nobler character than Adam, and the Denver Mother Eve is so regarded by her followers.

How would you like to wander in the Garden of Eden with a new Eve, entirely free from original sin, curiosity, spitefulness or any other of the faults which have been imputed to woman since the fall?

This is the pleasure that awaits those who join the new religion, and it is attracting people in considerable numbers.

There is no danger that this Eve will listen to the voice of the serpent. He may advance his most specious and persuasive arguments, employ his most winning and seductive flatteries, but she will turn a deaf ear to him. Mother Melissa Sharp Eve will invite no man to a picnic of forbidden fruit.

It must be admitted that the members of the new sect are a strange looking lot, and it appears that the majority of normal men will continue to prefer the ordinary woman, with all her faults, including her disposition to listen to the voice of the serpent.

Your correspondent called at the present headquarters of the Adam and Eve sect a large house on Marion street. He was met by a handsome woman, with an enthusiastic and visionary smile upon her face. Instinctively he felt himself in the presence of Mother Eve.

"Mother Eve, I presume?" the correspondent began, lifting his hat reverently.

"Yes," she answered. "I am Mother Eve come back to earth again. Do you wish to enter the Garden of Eden?"

"I should like to visit it very much."

She led the way into a large room full of untidy looking people, among whom were a number of children. A will-eyed, tremendously whiskered man sat upon a throne and announced in a loud voice that he was Adam, sent to lead man back into the Garden of Eden.

The correspondent sided into the most distant corner of the room, preferring to obtain enlightenment from Eve, who kindly accompanied him.

"How many people already belong to the Garden of Eden?"

"Well, I think there are two hundred of us now. Many of them are children, because they are most free from sin and, therefore, fit to enter the garden after Adam has preached the word to them for a short time. We gather up orphans and children of parent who are not able to care for them."

"Have you any children of your own?" inquired the visitor.

"Oh, yes," said Mother Eve, smiling proudly and indicating a boy of twelve with a bulging forehead and a solemn expression. "That is little Able. He is the brightest flower in the Garden of Eden. He has preached hundreds of times and he is almost as powerful a preacher as his father. He will bring many of the race of Eve into the promise land."

"As you have a little Able, am I to infer that there is also a little Cain?" ventured the correspondent.

"Ah," said Mother Eve, "it makes us very sad to speak of Cain. Yes, we have a little Cain. His name at first was Thomas, but when the light was revealed to us we knew that he was Cain. He put our dear little Able on the stove and did a lot of other dreadful things. Of course, Cain could not come into the Garden of Eden. We had to leave him to wander in the wicked world."

"You don't mean to say you have deserted your child?"

"Well," said Mother Eve, "that is hardly the way to put it. Cain would not come with us. He is working for a grocer in Kansas City and is earning lucre."

"How will your community be supported in the Garden of Eden?"

"Every believer must give up all that he has and follow Adam. He will care for everybody. We shall need very little in the Garden of Eden. We shall not have money or clothes or houses or any property. We shall sleep in the fields or under tents, and every man will take what he needs from his neighbor."

"There will be neither sin or sickness in the Garden, for it was by sin that death came into the world. Adam will cleanse men from their sins and lead them back to the Garden. There we shall live forever."

"We shall live on the fruits and plants of the field in the Garden. We shall not have herds of cattle. They were the earliest form of property that man took to himself after the fall, and they were a sign of his sinful condition. It is wicked to own cattle and to eat meat. He that eats the flesh of his fellow creatures is surely bringing about his own destruction."

"Will you do any work in the Garden of Eden?"

"Certainly not. You know that the first punishment of Adam for his disobedience was that he should earn his bread in the sweat of his brow. When Adam redeems men from their sins they have no longer need to work. It would be a sin to do so. We shall just wander happily and guilelessly in the Garden and smell the flowers and listen to the birds. We shall do no work forever and forever. Adam will preach to us when the spirit moves him."

Here Adam thumped his Bible and yelled out:

"I am opening up the third kingdom. I will redeem the world. These children here will help me."

"A—a—men!" cried Mother Eve. "A—a—men!" cried all the others.

"Do you feel quite sure that none of the sisters and daughters of Eve will disturb your sinless and peaceful life in the Garden?" pursued the visitor.

"Of course not," said Mother Eve, indignantly. "If you imagine that, you have failed to understand one of the greatest truths of our religion. When woman is redeemed by Adam, she ceases to lead man into temptation, which is her great fault in an unregenerate state. Nearly all the unhappiness and wickedness in the world are caused by this fault of woman, as you are aware. When she is free from it, the greatest cause of sin will be removed and that is why we shall all be good in the Garden of Eden."

"Will woman have no desire to wear beautiful clothes in the Garden of Eden?"

LONDON GAMBLING TIPS.

Revelations of an Illicit but Paying Industry.

From time to time great public surprise is expressed when the announcement is made in the newspapers that a quiet, respectable looking house in the apparently unimportant London neighborhood has been raided by the police and the proprietors heavily fined for occupying the premises for purposes of illegal gaming.

Only a few weeks ago two foreigners were fined £200—and this was the seventh occasion on which they had been fined—for using a large house in a fashionable West End square as the headquarters of a gambling den largely frequented by gilded youths and those idlers who prefer to make a living by any other means than by hard work. The fine was paid at once, and the judge expressing his surprise at so heavy a penalty was always paid by the proprietors without any difficulty, he was informed by a well-known police inspector that the profits of a fashionable London gambling den frequently amounted to as much as £500 in a single week.

In order, therefore, to fathom the mystery of this heavy margin of profit derived from keeping gambling dens, a writer, accompanied by a plainclothes officer, paid a visit to several establishments on which for some time the police have had a watchful eye. The greatest secrecy is invariably exercised by the keepers of these dens to prevent any one being admitted who is likely to "split" and give information to the "yard" which would justify a warrant being issued and raid made on the premises.

The interior of a gambling den presents a spectacle which those who pay a call for the first time will never forget. Heavy curtains effectually keep out the daylight even on the warmest summer day, while a janitor of unpleasantly pugilistic appearance guards the door, ready to eject every client who shows a disposition to complain of his losses having been brought about by unfair means in the far corner of the room during a long session of a tape machine, giving the winners and starting prices, ticks wildly about, while around a long table covered with green baize sit, hour after hour, crowds of harassed, excited looking gamblers registering their wagers and eagerly discussing the chances of the various candidates on each race.

As a general rule, faro is the game most dear to the heart of the gambling den proprietor, for on each hand dealt a charge of sixpence is made, and, as frequently upward of sixty hands are dealt in an hour, it can be easily understood that the dealer's commission soon swells into a very considerable sum. And not a moment of the day is wasted. From early one morning until early the next morning some game of chance is being played, and as even the most voracious gamblers acquire a few hours' sleep, the proprietor invariably has two or three friends ready to take charge of things while he "turns in" for a short time.

Perhaps one of the most striking features of a well-organized gambling den is the elaborate system of keeping a touch with the movements of the police. For instance, spies are from morning until night on watch outside to give notice of any suspicious movement on the part of the "gentlemen in blue," while the approach of any strangers in plain clothes to the building is invariably signalled to the looker-on, so that time is allowed to conceal the various implements of gambling should a raid be contemplated.

Teacher of Golf.

The only woman golf teacher in England can proudly point to her position as being unique. She is a professional instructor in the game and gives her lessons at the Prince's Ladies' Golf club at Mitcham. Mrs. Jordan Robertson has been teaching for just a year, and in that time has given over 500 lessons. In one month alone she gave 97, for golf is a game that ladies are taking up with enthusiasm, and they yearn to excel their male friends. "I think women can teach women golf much better than men," said Mrs. Robertson to a representative. "It is difficult for a man to teach a woman, for the woman knows (at least I do) the faults that women make in learning the game. She knows their power, strength and their weakness, and can, therefore, anticipate and overcome their difficulties. Personally I am not a great golfer, but people tell me that I know how to teach it." With the exception of two "finishing" schools that she visits, Mrs. Robertson only has six members of her own club in the club course and does not go further afield. "I don't want to enter into competition with the male professions," she said.

No Cheap Man, Either.

"She's worth her weight in gold!" the proud American mother asserted. Assuming pure gold worth approximately 220 per ounce, and knowing her eight to be 110 pounds, the Countess's rapid mental calculation arrived at the figure $15,400.

Oh, ah, a most charming young girl, of course," he said, hastily changing up his hat and cane; "but I had been led to believe—aw, that is, I didn't think of that price, you see."

Grief Kills a Mother.

Following the tragic death of her son, Robert Finch, the fourteen-year-old Ravenna, Ohio, schoolboy who fell dead when his teacher was administering a rebuke for misconduct, last Thursday, his mother, Mrs. George Finch, aged 34 years, suddenly expired in the doorway of her broken heart. Her death is attributed to a grief which she had suffered deeply over her boy's death, saying to a friend that she felt her own life was soon to end. The teacher was one of those who sought to console her, but the heartbroken mother was inconsolable.

Wiped Out The Family.

Thos. Baldwin, a rich farmer and former merchant of Colfax, Ill., shot and killed Chas. Kennedy and wife and Mrs. Sim Eisman and daughter, Cora. Baldwin was arrested. Baldwin, who is 68 years old and a widower, is under bond, charged with criminal assault on Cora Eisman, who is but 14 years of age. He had settled with the girl's father for a sum of money, but was subsequently arrested and blamed the Kennedys and Mrs. Eisman for the prosecution.

SLEEPING CARS.

The First Grade Ones Were Thought the Acme of Comfort.

Current advertisements describing the luxurious appointments offered the modern traveler on sea and land give point to the contrast afforded by the facilities of the middle of the last century, which were then regarded as the height to which the passengers had a right to aspire. The issue of the Pennsylvania Railroad and Mining Register of June 28, 1856, said:

"The Buffalo Car company lately shipped a lot of cars for the Illinois Central railroad which are far ahead of anything in their line yet seen in the west. One of them contained six staterooms, each room having two seats with cushioned backs, long enough for a person to lie upon. The backs of the seats are hung with hinges at the upper edge, so that they may be turned up at pleasure, thus forming two single berths, one over the other, where persons may sleep with all the comfort imaginable. In one end of the car is a small wash room, with marble washbowl, looking glass, etc. On the opposite side of the car from the staterooms is a row of seats with revolving backs, similar to barbers' chairs, so arranged that the occupant may sit straight or recline in an easy attitude at pleasure. The other five cars have each two or three similar staterooms."

The birth of the Pullman car came a little later. In the spring of 1853 George M. Pullman remodeled at Bloomington, Ill., a few of the cars of the Chicago and Alton and made them the first Pullman sleeping cars—Railway World.

HORSESHOES.

The Three Lucky Elements That Are Associated in Them.

The superstition that associates the horseshoe with good luck is very old. It is said to prevail not only among English speaking people, but in all the races of Europe and in southern Asia. Antiquarians are undecided whether its origin has to do with the material from which the horseshoe is made or with its shape.

The ancients believed that iron as a metal had great secret powers, and they drove nails into their walls as a protection against pestilence. The Arabs when overtaken by severe storms in the desert cry out, "Iron, iron!" which they think will propitiate the evil spirits which have raised the storm. The Scandinavians have held from time immemorial the idea that it was lucky to find a piece of iron.

As regards the form of the horseshoe, there is no doubt that among the ancients the crescent form was much favored as having lucky or preservative powers. Ornaments were shaped in this way to drive away evil spirits. The Chinese have their talismans in a semicircular form, like a horseshoe, and the Moors use the same form in their architecture.

It may be remarked that in the mythology of Europe horses were also regarded as luck bearers, and superstition once supposed that a horse's hoof placed under the bed would cure certain complaints. The horseshoe therefore may be said to unite within itself three lucky elements—it is in the shape of a crescent, it is made of iron, and it has been taken from a horse.

Fashions Caused by Deformities.

Of the close connection between fashion and deformity there are many examples. Through illness Philip the Good had to have his head shaved. Shaven heads, accordingly, perforce, became fashionable at his court.

The daughters of Louis XI. hid their very large feet in long dresses; hence trailing gowns.

The wife of Philip III. set the fashion of high collars in disguising her long neck with a wimple.

Henry Plantagenet introduced boots with extravagantly curved toes to conceal a growth on one of his feet.

Louis XIV. wore a wig to cover up a slightly wens on his head, while James I. adopted voluminous trunk hose, afterward fashionable, to hide his disease.

Bruises.

No treatment for bruises is more prompt and efficacious than fomentations as hot as can be borne. Firm compression immediately over the injured place will often prevent discoloration, but the hot application will have the same effect. The sooner the heat can be applied the better. Alternate applications of heat and cold are very effective. For all bruises, except those on the head, heat is the remedy, but for severe blows on the head cold is doubtless better. Fomentations may be used at intervals to lessen the soreness, but should not be continued more than five minutes at a time.

Great Britain.

The Island of Great Britain—so called to distinguish it from Britain Minor, of Little Britain, in France—is the largest island in Europe. Its greatest length is 608 miles and its greatest breadth 220 miles. It embraces England, Scotland and Wales. No other country in the world has such great mineral wealth in so small an area. Coal is first, and the other important minerals are iron, tin, copper, lead, silver, zinc, iron pyrites and salt.

His Time Coming.

Young Mother—Harry, dear, you mustn't go near the baby. Young Father—Mayn't I just look at him a minute? Young Mother—No, dear; he's asleep. I'll let you take him when he wakes up in the night.

A man never catches up with his good intentions for tomorrow.—Success Magazine.

CAUGHT BY THE GRIP-- RELEASED BY PE-RU-NA.

La Grippe Is Epidemic Catarrh.

THE disease now known as 'grip' used to be called 'influenza.' It very closely resembles a cold, but is more tenacious in its hold upon the system and produces more profound disturbances.

Grip is in reality epidemic catarrh. When it once begins it spreads over the country very rapidly.

People do not catch the grip from each other, but each one catches it from the atmosphere.

"Most Effective Medicine Ever Tried for La Grippe."

Robt. L. Madison, A. M., Principal of Cullowhee High School, Painter, N. C., is chairman of the Jackson County Board of Education.

He is a writer of occasional verse and has contributed to a number of leading papers and magazines, religious, educational and secular.

In speaking of Peruna, Mr. Madison says: "I am hardly ever without Peruna in my home. It is the most effective medicine that I have ever tried for la grippe."

"It also cured my wife of nasal catarrh. Her condition at one time was such that she could not at night breathe through her nostrils."

"In consequence, an inflamed condition of the throat was brought about, getting worse and worse and yielding to no remedy until Peruna was tried."

Healthy Mucous Membranes.

Those who are fortunate enough to have perfectly healthy mucous membranes ordinarily do not catch the grip.

The mucous membranes lining the nose, throat and lungs, when in a normal state, are an effective barrier against the invasion of grip.

But, if there happens to be the slightest catarrhal derangement of the mucous membranes, then the victim becomes an easier prey to the grip.

This part explains why some people get the grip, while others do not.

The rational thing to do is to keep the system free from catarrh. In attempting to do this most people have found Peruna to be invaluable.

Systemic Catarrh, the Result of La Grippe. Pe-ru-na Receives Credit for Present Good Health.

Mrs. Jennie W. Gilmore, Box 44, White Oak, Ind., formerly Housekeeper for Indiana Reform School for Boys, writes:

"Six years ago I had la grippe, which was followed by systemic catarrh. The only thing I used was Peruna and Manalin, and I have been in better health the last three years than for years before."

"I give Peruna all the credit for my good health."

During an epidemic of grip Peruna should be used. The doses recommended on the bottle are sufficient.

After the grip has once been acquired, Dr. Hartman recommends the use of Peruna in teaspoonful doses every hour during the acute stage, after which the directions on the bottle should be followed.

Experience has shown that the people who use Peruna as a remedy for grip generally recover sooner and are less liable to the distressing and long-continued after-effects of the grip.

When Peruna has not been used during the course of the grip and the patient finds himself suffering from the after-effects of this disease, a course of Peruna should be resorted to.

Suffered Twelve Years From After-Effects of La Grippe.

Mr. Victor Patenande, 323 Madison St., Topeka, Kan., member of Knights and Ladies of Security, writes:

"Twelve years ago I had a severe attack of la grippe and I never really recovered my health and strength—but grew weaker every year, until I was unable to work."

"Two years ago I began using Peruna and it built up my strength so that in a couple of months I was able to go to work again."

"This winter I had another attack of la grippe, but Peruna soon drove it out of my system. My wife and I consider Peruna a household remedy."

Pneumonia Followed La Grippe.

Mr. T. Barncott, West Aymer, Ontario, Can., writes:

"Last winter I was ill with pneumonia after having la grippe. I took Peruna for two months, when I became quite well, and I can say that any one can be cured by it in a reasonable time at little expense."

Pe-ru-na—A Tonic After La Grippe.

Mrs. Chas. E. Wells, Sr., Delaware, Ohio, writes: "After a severe attack of la grippe, I took Peruna and found it a very good tonic."

Mrs. Jane Giff, Athens, Ohio, writes: "Six years ago I had la grippe very bad. I read a testimonial of a woman who had been cured of grip by Peruna. My husband bought me a bottle of Peruna. I was soon able to do my work. I continued using it until I was cured."
